Thomas Sanglier, II, CIA, CRMA

Thomas Sanglier, CIA, CRMA, CPA, is the 2022-23 Chair of The Institute of Internal Auditors (IIA) North American Board of Directors. In this position, Sanglier provides direction for The IIA's strategic plan in North America and oversees its implementation.

As North American Board chair, Sanglier is a strong proponent of The IIA's mission to elevate internal audit's impact. To Sanglier, that means adding value, making important contributions and exceeding expectations as individuals, teams, and as a profession. Internal auditors should be making a positive impact on their organizations, their communities, and the public interest. To that end, The IIA needs to positively impact its members. One way to affect this is to collaborate with, listen to, and strengthen relationships with the North American Chapters. The North American Board's responsibility is to ensure The Institute is doing just that. During his year as chair, Sanglier will work tirelessly to elevate the profession's impact by collaborating with The IIA's stakeholders to ensure their collective success.

Sanglier has 18 years of experience in internal audit and is currently the Senior Vice President Internal Audit with Leidos Holdings, an American defense, aviation, information technology, and biomedical research company headquartered in Reston, Virginia. He has extensive experience in all aspects of internal audit, from leading internal audits and risk assessments for financial, operational, and compliance audits, to overseeing the execution of audit plans, and communicating with senior leadership and audit committees. Prior to Leidos Holdings Sanglier was a Senior Director, Internal Audit with Raytheon Technologies and a Partner with Ernst & Young's Advisory practice serving private and public organizations in the technology, manufacturing, and professional services industries.

Sanglier has been involved as a volunteer leader with The IIA since becoming a member in 2011. He has served as a member of The IIA's Guidance Development Committee, North American Publications Advisory Committee, the Audit Committee, and multiple task forces.

Sanglier has developed and delivered training presentations for multiple domestic and international IIA conferences and professional organizations on subjects such as disruptive technology, enterprise risk management, governance risk and control, Sarbanes-Oxley, anti-fraud/corruption, internal auditing and leadership. He has written a book, "Auditing and Disruptive Technologies" published in April 2018, as well as the article "The Versatile Auditor" published December 2015 (Internal Auditor Magazine).

Sanglier earned a Bachelor of Business Administration from the University of Michigan and is a US Army veteran.
